LOVE STORY

39

PHIL I heard her and I think she's crazy!

OLIVER Well may be that's the problem. This isn't about what you think. It's about what we think. I've never met anyone like Jenny . Ever. And one of the reasons I fell in love with her is that she knows her own mind. Every minute of every day. And she tells me. What she feels, what she believes, what she wants. And I'm beginning to see where she gets that from. I thank you for that. But she also listens. And she and I have decided that if we are to be together, then we both have to make sacrifices. I've given up the support of my family, and she's given up her studies in Paris. And we'll miss them. Every single day. And that's a measure of how much we love each other. Because those sacrifices are worth it if they mean we can carry on spending our lives loving, respecting and listening. And may be it's time other men in her life showed her just a little of that same respect . . . and listened . . .

(Long pause.)

PHIL Well . . . at least I know he's going to be a good lawyer.

(Beat.)

PHIL But if one word of that turns out to be bullshit, you'll wish you'd never met her. Okay?

OLIVER Okay. Phil. But I can promise you I will never wish that.

PHIL Good.

(PHIL breaks away from OLIVER and turns to JENNY.)

PHIL (brightly, trying to start again) So . . . where are you getting married? In Boston where no one can get to, or in the church here where you were baptized?

JENNY . . . Um . . . we're not getting married in church . . .

PHIL What?!?!
Amen!
